Use the Get-UiPathAuthToken cmdlet: PS C:\>Get-UiPathAuthToken -URL -Username -Password -Session To connect to an Orchestrator instance using integrated AD SSO, use the -WindowsCredentials argument to get the token. The library will authenticate the Orchestrator as the Windows user running the PowerShell session: ps c:\> get -uipathauthToken -url -windowscredentials -Session The session flag causes authentication to persist in the PowerShell session for up to 30 minutes. After that, you will need to authenticate each cmdlet again. Some examples: use get-uipathauthToken ... -telantname for orchestrator deployments with several tenants. Use get -uipathauthToken ... -OrganizationUnit for orchestrator deployments with the organizational units activated. If you do not specify any arguments, authentication will be an interactive authentication with the UIPATH Cloud service. This does not require administrative privileges, but registration is transitory. Instead, you can choose to run from a high prompt and remove the -Scope CurrentUser for a permanent record. You can validate that the Nuget package provider and the Uipath Gallery repository are registered: PS C:\> Get-PackageProvider -Name Name of the Name of the Dynamicoptions version-----Scope, SkipDependA^ncias, cabeA^alhos, filtrontag ... I passed through the API document, it asks to use below the URL. "https://platform.uipath. with/odata/jobs/uipath. server. configuration.odata.startjobs how to approve process ID and any required arguments (for API call) to start a job in this URL. I also want to check how to pass parameters to the initiated RPA process. Can anyone share an example of how to pass this information? 3 LIGHS Hello @tony.u, I hope this can help you:teg I.resworb eht ni tih I nehW tuB .nekot reraeB eht gnidivorp refa snow namtsop/oiduts htapiu morf rorre tenirohtuanu gnitteg ma I llac toboRteg eht rof,anasuS@ iH .tsubor erom noitacilppa eht ekam I don't know. Do you have any idea what I'm missing here? Hello @abdul420, If you checked Bear's token, try removing your Cookies on the postman and let me know. How many, Susana 2 Likes Hello @Susana, Thank you worked after cleaning cookies. Cheers, Tamin 1 Like Susana: rer token try token remove your Cookies in p Hi Susana, May I know which authorization you are using to configure the account? Now I'm using the basics. However, I still get below the error Hello @dwshtowtime, First of all you need to make a POST request for the . uipath.com/api/account/authenticate URL with your orchestrator login credentials, to get the token. This code should be used in all future requests. So you have to copy and paste this token from the HTTP response, from the "result" parameter in your requests. Here is an example of postman collection TEST ORCHESTRATOR POSTMAN.postman.collection.json (1.2 KB) Please pass these links: UiPath API Orchestra: Authentication Help Hi. I am trying to authenticate the Orchestrator API that informs the HTTP Request activity, with as Final Point, following the instructions indicated inhtml Authentication The status code returned 500 is always the service response. Any idea how to solve this problem? Is there a xaml example of this operation? Thank you. How many, Susana 1 As Hello Susana, don't clean the picture yet.
